

MEANSHIFT CLUSTERING BY ANALOGY

Imagine a foggy football field with 100 people standing on it. Because of the fog, people can only see a short distance. Every minute each person looks around and takes a step in the direction of the most people they can see. As time goes on, people start to group up as they repeatedly take steps towards larger and larger crowds. The end result is clusters of people around the field.

ChrisAlbon