BAG OF WORDS

Converts text to a matrix where every row is an observation and every feature is a unique word. The value of each element in the matrix is either a binary indicator marking the presence of that word or an integer of the number of times that word appears.

Chris Albon